God's intervention in our Lives

When you are desperate for God to intervene in the midst of your trials, where in the Bible do you turn most often for hope? 2 Chronicles 16:9 is one of the best places to look for hope. "The eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to give strong support to those whose heart is blameless toward him." God is not slow to see our needs. He is not distracted or preoccupied. His eyes run to give strong support to those who are his. He is an attentive Father and a tenacious comforter.

But the fierceness and tenderness of God's love in this verse makes the next six words all the more chilling: "You have done foolishly in this." (2 Chronicles 16:9)

When the prophet Hanani reminded King Asa that God's eyes run to and fro throughout the earth, he was warning the king, even condemning him, not reassuring and comforting him. What was his message to Asa? If you seek God's help in your desperation, no one and nothing will be able to harm you. But if you run elsewhere for help and do not turn to God, no one and nothing will be able to save you.

Asa knew the sweetness of seeing God suddenly send strong support. Just two chapters earlier, when a million Ethiopians descended on his army, and he was outnumbered two to one, Asa cried to the Lord his God, "O Lord, there is none like you to help, between the mighty and the weak. Help us, O Lord our God, for we rely on you, and in your name we have come against this multitude. O Lord, you are our God; let not man prevail against you." (2 Chronicles 14:11)

What kind of heart does God run to support? One that recognizes that no one and nothing can help like him — "O Lord, there is none like you to help." God does not promise to help those who treat him like a last resort. Asa looked immediately to God when the Ethiopians invaded, knowing that God alone was greater than all his enemies.

What happens when Asa runs to God for help? God runs to fight for Asa: "So the Lord defeated the Ethiopians before Asa and before Judah, and the Ethiopians fled" (2 Chronicles 14:12). Asa relied on the Lord, and God defeated a million soldiers.

God can do the same for you. Turn to him first in your trials.

Jeremy

Good Morning church family! We hope that you have come with glad hearts today as we prepare to worship our God through songs of praise, prayers of thanksgiving, and by observing the Lord's Supper together.
